“Elijah and I went to Elementary school and Middle school together. We were really good friends in elementary school, we had all of the same classes. He would always make me laugh when he made dad jokes, I wish he didn't have to go this way. I hope he rests in peace with the lord and is in a better place.

“ not a day has went by that we havent had to ask " is this real ", and reality is yes, this is the hardest days and nights since you passed son, its a pain i cant describe with words emotions and feelings are chaos, and tho youre not hurting or alone, nor do you have to try to fit in or to swallow the school drama because you just wanted a friend. you are free now, painless, happiness, peace and everlasting love from heavens throne. not a day has went by that we havent asked if this is real, yes this is but comfort is found in knowing youre now a angel that looks over us Son, youre proof of pure gentle genuine unconditional love and with that im blessed that you showed that to me. i love you and always will LOVE,

We used to be good friends until I moved. I met you when I was 6 and moved when I was 9. I will always miss you and remember you forever. I'm sorry for when I got mad at you, I was young and didn't realize you were just joking. We loved playing with you at our houses. At least you're in a better place now.
